Theme: Today's Architecture & Beyond

Being in a global village gives us the experience as though there are no longer any definite boundaries. There is no monopoly on perception, knowledge and information. Architecture is not spared because of the advancement of science and technology. While we are focused on the present, we are also aware of the opportunities and challenges of the future. We design not only on the core of prevailing circumstances today but with calculated consideration for tomorrow. This can be likened to mobility that is limited to action instead of considering it as beyond movement. Mobility in knowledge is not just shared in reading books but also in actual practice. Since the practice of architecture is within the ambit of this phenomenon, it submitted that the best way to improve is to collaborate. Architects in the academe are still considered the bastion of knowledge, therefore, it must be utilized as a springboard towards the culture of collaboration.

- INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION ASSEMBLY

Now on its 4th year, Architects in the Academe Assembly (AAA) goes global by elevating the assembly of local architects into an International Conference on Architecture Education. The 3-day event is slated on May 30-31 & June 1, 2019. It is a milestone event for the country to be holding the first ever conference dedicated to architectural education that will be attended by international delegations representing the different architecture schools in the world, particularly in Asia.
